Come to me. O se children.

ome to me, O we consider.

For I bear you at your play and the questions that perpli Have vanished quite away.

All what would the world be to us.
If the children were no more?
We should dread the describehind us.
Worse than the dark before.

What the leaves are to the forest, With light and air for food, Fre their awest and tender juices Have been hardened into wood—

That to the world are children :

Come to me, O ye children:
And whisper in my ear
What the birds and the winds are singing
In your summy atmosphere.

For what are all our contrivings, And the wisdom of our books, When compared with your careases And the gladness of your looks?
