OUR FURNICES

In our last impo we, adverted to the present depreciated association of our correct, as being the question above all others save the fullard of our arms in the field most fraught with danger to our sense, and most suggestly demanding the period consideration and prompt astion of our Confederate and State governments. The opinion expressed that he consist in the volume of the curron ay, is the original and presistent cause of our flauncial difficulties, will not like ly most with a single dissentient voice. That the depreciation in the value of the oursency is attributable directly to the cause above, we do not think can be concause alone, we do not think can be con-fidently america. We know that those who write on the subject would tain at identy asserted. We know that those who write oscilla subject would tain at tribute no importance to the want of considence of our people in the ultimate essences of our cause, for fear of teatring side a spirit by hobling it up to the people as an existent fact. But, sathough they are right in the assumption that the people with great unanimity confidently believe in our final success, ye the human mind is proue to view the events of the future as probabilities, which soliton partake of the nature of what we true moral certainties. We wisses of the future too, are altogette different according to the intelligence and disposition of the individual, whether he be the at gains enthusiast, who can see alroad, a people basking in the smalline of properity, and peace and ple ty, or the poor disposition of the widesoo of ruin, and decountion and starvation staring him in the lane at every turn. People will calculate chances, and though the cause to which we refer has its effect in making mone preter real estate or property of almost any kind to treasury notes or Omefaderate bonds, yet the most proor Confederate bonds, yet the most pro-minent came of the depreciation of these notes must be attributed to their redundangy. But sheet is another cause ater moment and which now, be still greater moment and which now. Soreland, exerts in baneful infinence in in efficies. The per-ple can't see how the Government is to pay its dubts save by repediating a word which is the ombodiesses to so monetrous a hereey in national movals and assignal policy, that evan before it shows its hideous form in the moor-day sun as a autional act, it exerts its infrasees for the production of swil. But more of this anon.

There is, however, snother cause of the depreciation of our currency which

There is, however, snother cause of the depreciation of our currency which is not often considered. It must be remembered that prior to the war the whale Scutt was literally flooded with products of Northern and European meantactures, embracing the whole a moment of its isosports, and requiring a certain volume of currency to effect the architeges in their distribution to the farther limits of the Confederacy. The staples of the South usually exported most these demands over at present staples of the South smally exported to meet these demands one at a presentened away is its warehouses, and are not changing lands as they do it times when their is an outlet for them in for sign srads. It follows, that even it the volume of the currency had remained the same as at the beguning of the warriwoold have depactated in proportion to the steems it bors to the spoessifies of these under a system of blockade, and much shore when the volume was further increased by the issue of treasnry notes. In addition to this fact the first issue of these netter ware distributed through the State of Missouri, Ariam ms, Leatnicky, Tennossee, Louisia a, and in line all that portion of the Confiderary now partially or wholly in the heads of the enemy. As in our defending the control of the control t these demands exist at presu A Marie Me Meto es war, will be generally conced that of larying a tax sufficient the experience of the Governmen ment of our strug property which at that to been in great demand than any bearing than any able, and which cannot perhabs be remedied by any législative action that will not also engender a greater or less a mount of difficulty in its execution, and never be brought about uniess the whole people from one limit of the Confedera by to the other are fully aroused not on by to the absolute necessity of individual by to the other are fully aroused not only to the absolute necessity of individual action, but to a concurrence of opinion as to the means employed, and the good results that are to flow from them. It will hardly be possible to withdraw the alines of the people from their private affairs to such a degree as to accomplish this object, and we can, with regret, but regard the whole scheme as Utopian in the extreme. Enthusiastic meetings will pass patriotic resolutions resulting, no doubt, in some good, but the people in the extreme of these meetings thereselves, vill neither give to them a second hought, nor lend the influency of their example I seeing them extred out.—Ine truth is the people are looking to the diovernment to reaudy the evils encouncied to be a second over a contract of the cem to have given up in despair the accompaishment of any good results commensurate with the evil, by legislative action. If it has so difficult to as ain to a concurrence of op-nions and concert of action in our legislative hails, thy expect with much less reason these doctors to action amongst a whole poo-indival to action amongst a whole poople?

The truth is the subject presents most surious difficulties, and we are not surprised at a wast of agreement in opinions in any quarter. But the evil is uncest alarming and continually increasing, and even if a course of legislation should be adopted that would be sitted with some inequalities, we should, in order to remedy a greater evil which is creasing a discontent amongst our poople and engendering the success of our cause, submit to them with patience—those who frust to the measures that are proposed by those who are attempting to meite the people to do that wheth, if done at all, must be accountished by a concert of action between our Confederate and State Governments, will never to fear see their hopes realized, and the ine thus loss in such experiments will only ican to the augmentation of the first own of the contract of the supersistent of the papers before the imagination of the speems of only meetings, and their resolutions to do correspondents of the papers occure the image, ration of the scheme of county meetings, and their resolutions to do what will never be done. We regrot not being able to have a particle of faith in the efficiency, is the remotest degree, of the means thus employed for accomplishing the desired object, for it is always painful to see the good intentions of any portion of the people thwarted by an attempt to carry out a schome that a occomes inexpedient because of the impossibility of secaring the unity of action necessary to remote it available.

If the object had it view, of reducin the volume of the currency to the propersion of the currency to the advantage of the people, but the accomplishment of this object should not have been attempted by any means which violated the government faith, or tended to impain the confidence of the people. We promote to examine briefly some of the chemos and singgestions now occasionally met with in the attempts of correspondents of the papers to solve the difficulties which under present circumstances have begone almost insurmountable, and which cannot perhase be remissioned as the propersion of the very point and the very point of the very point
