O, when that the solder return to his home. To become deroied and pure !

Thy jeasunine, land of the South, is in blow Perfuming the teach and the sea; And the laurel tree gives me red lite to thy As patriots must to be free.

And starts it a locating betheard.

O. Land of the South, I flow to defend thee,
hot torood by Confederate laws,
But left errey confederate laws,
To conquer or dis my note cause.
As belsmont I fought and bind with the forement,
My matrix Kantecky in sight,
And the graves of hir heroes, her hills and he valleys,
Eow grand did they rise in the light!

My father was with me, and fell in the Two brethers at Shiloh were slain;

making binesses to see our defenders in rage and weary with hunger While plenty is smiling with thee.
