WAR IN ELEOPE.—The tolograph brings the news that flagrant hostilities have commenced between Dommark, on the one part, and Austria and Prussia on the other. There was heavy fighting on the didn't flagrant hostilities in the other than the hostilities is morth of the Ender river, in the membered, however, that the accounts commethed to the Danes. It must be remembered however, that the accounts commethed to the Danes. The scene of hostilities is north of the Ender river, in the duchy of Schleswig.

Whother England will interfere with force to assist Denmark in preventing the secession of the Danish duchies remains to be seen. Her vigor, of late, has had no ultimatum beyond diplomote the remonstances; and it will probably not transcend these limits now. The Danes are a warlike people, and although evermatched, the war is likely to be obstinate and bloody.
