stral Meticlian's Letter.

The letter written by Gwneral McClel-han to Pracident Lincoln from Harrison's Bar, immediately after the great battles of the Seven Days,—and which will be found on the first page—is one of the most remarkable documents in the history of the war. It foreseasts with a stateon the sound political as well as the sound military policy upon which the war should have been conducted—a poli-dy upon which, at the time the letter was written, no one will deep that a vact ma-jerity of the loyal North were cordially mitted. The sound selection of the per-plexing problems which had then engaged the attention of the sovermant. tion of the government, and of see which emerged in subsequent events, there gives with a marrelous brevity a believe that if the war had been we believe that it use war and need the policy there indicated by General McClellan, it would long ago have ended by the continued unity of the North, the by the continued unity of the North, the division of the Statch, and the triumph of care nemy. A war for the abelition of likeway never can command the ascent of a majority of the northern people; never this conquer a united and desperate South, less fearful alternative than submission.

The opposition must and will support the administration with men and money, for emple its soorge.

I hope of one government ever the whote manky. But when meet year they take to government into their own hands they ill wage war only for the Union, said, government in the their own hands they may ever only for the Union, said, and the said the erippie its energies new is to d consiliation," will speedily structed sountry unity and

Mr. Seward declared it would be unich. Mr. Seward declared it would be unconstitutional, and Mr. Liucola thoughts it would be as idle as 'the Pope's thought is would be as dideas "the Pope's bell against the conset." But "the pressure" because too heavy; the proclima-tion was issued; and the long roll beaten, and the law, logic and someone of the "unconditional supporter." was again sommoored into the field, to prove that the proclimation was both necessary and legal. But fact was stronger than th the proclamation Las proved surse than e as a war measure; and it is whispered that it will not stand a judicial test.
A bill is therefore offired in Congross "to
