PARISH CLERK'S STORY.

For twenty miles around Renthalms was nothing but talk about Squire er's quarrel with his one and heir. Robert, such a jolly young theman myou don't meet every day. ten times as far away from us as it is now, and people had's taken so much to away at his superiors. ngh as for politics, we were glad enough to read about battles and that. So concerning young Mr. Robert, it was enderstood that it might be partly would go down on his marrow benea but it was pretty certain that he would be. For Mr. Roberts, be also could be atiff when he pleased—he was a chip!

But I must tell you. The fact was

Gen. Malleck's Peremptory Orders

On the 6th of Ontober we are told by Gen. Halleck bitmeelf, Gen. McClellan "was peremptorily ordered to cross the Potomac and fight the enemy or drive him South." Gen. McClellan saw at to disregard this impertinent order by which he was required to risk a useless shought-er of his troops by crossing the river in the face of the enemy's batteries, but in his own good time he made a flank move-ment east of the Blue Ridge and "drove the tnemy South" without losing a man, for doing which he was removed from his foremose.

About two months later Gen. Burnside was "perempterily ordered" by the same authority, to cross the Rappahannock and fight the enemy in his intronobaneats, the result of which was the reckious alongs ter of ten or fifteen thousand of our brave treeps and the retreat of the grand Army of the Potessac to this side of the river.
