THE Supreme Court of this State: a majority of the members being Democrata, interpreted our constitution in a manner despriving such of our citizens as had entered the military service of the privilege of voting at our elections. The injustice done that class of our citizens in thus distinctioning them was no apparent that has August the loyal people of the State amended the constitution and put if hey your holdiers. We rejoined in the success of a measure so just, believing that it would secure, to a class above all other estimated to it, the exercise of a privilege which every good citizen must regard as inestimable. The adoption of the amendment was proposed vigorously throughout the State by the Democrata. We saw as well as they that the votes of injus who were venturing their lives and enduring the hardships and privilation of complete the sake of an imperited government we're not likely to be cast for any man or party whose arympathies were not wholly with that government in its struggle, and consequently we understood well their grounds of oppositions to the measure. We never supposed that its operation would be interfered with after it had become part of our constitution, but believed that with the verdict of the people all active oppositions would exace. That we have been disappointed in this may be our fault, and certainly it is if the old adage be correct—rif a man cheat you twice on the ament hing it is yourn." nave been sufficient to put us upon our guard against an attempt by the same-garty to thwart the expressed will of the people bere. But be this as it may, we have the this week to chronicle s bold and inflamous attempt by the Democratic return judges of the counties of Adams. Bedford and Pulton to accomplish that very object. They me in their respective comities has Priday to count the votes returned. On the home work the Democratic rendification of the country of the thing of the country of the thing of the desired majority in each of these counties; but this majority was greatly reduced by the soldiers' rote which, countred in full, elects Gen. Koontz. The Democratic pludges, determined to prevent the fair and impartial operation of the law, and at the same time earnestly desirons of law ing this district misrepresented two years longer by the present Congressman, took it upon themselves, in violation of law, to reject certain soldier votes. Of the votes thus rejected Gen. Koontz has one hundred and sixty-two majority—while would be sufficient to elect him beyond all question. They were rejected, as we have been informed, for informality. In the different poll books votes are registered for candidates of other counties which according to the decision of these Democratic judges, is in violation of that provision of the act of Assembly under which the army votes were east, which requires that a survey of the provisions of the act of the work of the country. This at most is a meet informality in the manner of carrying on or executing any of the provisions of the same law which declares that—we quote the exact words of the provisions of this act, and it was induced the dates and we are provided for by a subsequent faction of the same faw which declares that—we quote the exact words of the provisions of the provision of the provis work of a vite conspiracy uncertained in these counties to defeat the will of the people and destroy the purity of the hall lott-box. If it be so then it is another proof of the revolutionary character of modern Democracy. In Kanasa it suffs bulbt-box can and intimidate legal voters, it forges soldiers votes for Seymour in New York and in Pennaylvania it rejects them when case for Union men. While the conthernree bels in vain endeavor to defeat our soldiers with bullets, the efforts of modern Democracy to defeat them with ballots will be equally fullet. "Seans sig before they die—

"Twee well some died before they sang."

But uneasy, discordant notes full in inpon its later dulect strains, Shadows seem to filt about its wreath of victory, and eadness breaks 'keenly in upon the symmetry of its song. "The army vote!" Some fatal magic clings to that brief seat-tence—some spell-bound dressi seems to confuse the Jolly Journal with mingied bayonets, bulless and ballots fifting about the tentred field, and it breaks in upon the glorious summer of rejoicing and spreads over the footies either of discounted. "What the army vote may be," says the discounted report." we have no means of ascertaining until it is officially announced." It has doubtless grown wordy in searching for this fabled "samy vote." but while it turned its anxious is quiries every where hat just where it could be found, its labors were unrewarded with definite information. "Only a few sout-tering returne" could be guithered in the diligent search of the Spirit. From which unthing can be decided with any degree of certainty." Of course neal? As the Sinte give only a very small majority for the Vinion party, and as the "army vote of certainty." Of course neal? As the White give only a bout eleven thousand the same way, it could not be expected that by such "seattering returne," anything could be "decided." Such a tax upon the imagination as to be results with such huperfer sources of knowledge, is most unreasoned, and it turns its job; into expressed since, and waits for November like the weary, wormount, dying idgrin why standed.
