BERIAL OF SIR JOHN MOORE.*

Het a dram was beard, nor a faneral note, As his some to the rampart we hurried: Hist a soldier discharged his Secureli shot O'er the grave, where our lere we baried

We buried him durkly, as dead of night, The sade with our bayonets tarsing, By the strangling membeam's minty light, And the lantern, dimly burning.

No moless soffin englosed his bream, Nor in slicet mer in shrout, we bound him: But he lay, like a warrier taking his rest, With his martial clock around him.

Few and short were the prayers we haid, And we spoke not a word of sorrow; But we should suity gased on the fine of the And we bitterly thought of the morrow.

And amouthed down his tonely pillow. That the fee would be rioting over his beed; And we far away on the billow.

Lightly they'll talk of the spirit that's gone, And o'er his sold askes upbraid him; But nothing he'll rack, if they'll let him sies In the grave where a Briton has laid him.

But half of our heavy task was done,

When the slook telled the hour for retiring;
And we heard, by the distant rendom gun,
That the foe was saddenly firing. Blowly and sadly we laid him down, From the field of his fame, fresh and gory; We carred not a line, we raised not a stone,

M chore is one discretified in a commit, alty of people, which will destroy its harmony, happings and prespectly more than another, that characteristic is readyless. Its effects are equally biaseful upon the civity as well as the seligious perios of a people. The prosperity, the quiet, the happiness, cay, the very life of the community itself depends upon its suppression, and when desers and self-respect are no longer exercised, the strong arm of the law should do its daty.

These remarks have been suggested and prompted by the series which were witnessed at the Baptist Cherch, on Stunday and a Taseday night last, in the very face of the similaristation of one of the most solumn ordinances of God's appoissment. A stranger from a Western Siste, who happened to be present, asked "if that was the way people behaved at ehurch in Stanton, remark, lag at the same time that it spoke very badly for the Laoraks of the place." We perfectly agree with him, but what will be the effect upon our tows, if strangers are permitted to see such conduct unrebucked?—What an envisible reputation has Baltimore acquired by permitting srah proceedings to go unroiteed, until they are now beyond control! The African Slave Trade.

Seward, of New York, has introduced into the Senate an amendment to the bill, prohibiting the slave trade, in which he proposes to seorifice more lives of Americans, by placing them on the shores of Africa to suppress the value trade. The London Times, the month-piece of English policy, who has assumed the position of protectorate over the socast of Africa, has the following the more non-beautiful to the suppress the month-piece of English policy, who has assumed the position of protectorate over the socast of Africa, has the following on the subject:
